As a natural phenomenon it is perhaps the most interesting of any ever occurring on the continent. The detonation was heard one hundred miles in every direction. Its weight is 431 pounds. It is peculiar in its character, and of a rare type, known among scientific men as Syssidores. The meteor undoubtedly belongs to the owner of the soil upon which it fell, and became a part, a natural gift, an accretion. Mr. Charles P. Birge, of this city, armed with the necessary legal papers, quietly left on Monday last for the scene of action, and is now on his return with the meteor.
